

Cardinal Seán's Blog

Cardinal Seán shares his reflections & experiences.

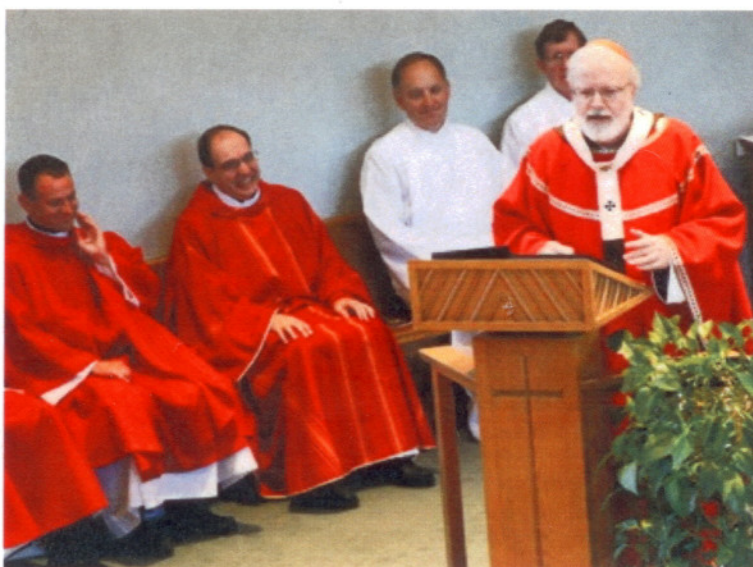

September 11, 2009

Celebrating the opening of South Boston Catholic Academy

Posted in: Main — Cardinal Seán @ 10:24 pm

Welcome back!

Last Friday I celebrated the Mass of the Holy Spirit at Blessed John XXIII National Seminary. This was their opening Mass for the year.

It's a great joy to see the seminarians at Blessed John XXIII, who come from dioceses throughout the country and who are receiving a wonderful formation there. This seminary was begun by my predecessor, Cardinal Cushing, in response to Pope John's statement that a vocation can come at any moment during life. Therefore, he named the seminary after Pope John. The rector Father Peter Uglietto, the faculty, and the Board of Directors are all doing a wonderful job there. There's a great spirit in the house.